RACERS WIN OPENING GAME OF SEASON

High Scoring Is Seen Because Of New Timing Rule

by United Press International
Two points were quickly established in the seven games of basketball played by Kentucky college teams Monday night — the new timing rule is going to produce much higher scores this season, and Mike Redd is every bit as good as he was supposed to be.

With the clock now stopped whenever the action stops games have been running 15 to 20 minutes longer, and scores accordingly higher, this season. Two of the winning teams and one of the losers Monday night went over the 100-mark.

Aside from Kentucky's 107-91 rout of Texas Tech, there was Morehead's 109-102 scramble over Cumberland; Kentucky Wesleyan's 90-81 win over Wabash (Ind.), in which Redd made his college debut with 33 points; and Eastern Kentucky's 90-75 romp over Campbellsville.

In other games, Murray State opened with an 83-68 victory over McKendree College of Lebanon, Illinois before a good turn out of fans in the MSC sports arena.

Couch Cal Luther's aggregation took a 9-1 opening advantage and drifted to the 15-point triumph as nine players on the 12-man roster found the scoring column. All five starters scored in double numerals.

McKendree, with a veteran lineup that helped the Illinois school capture its conference championship for the sixth consecutive time last year, never came closer than three points at 12-9, after five minutes of play.

performance. His running mate at guard, Roy Ware, helped out with 17 and sophomore center Henry Akin netted 15 in his debut.

Murray's attack operated like a perfectly balanced watch, with John Namcu's 15 points high for the Racers, but with five others in double figures.

Eastern's tall but relatively green team looked a little erratic at times, but powerful at others as sophomore center Eddie Bodkin set the pace with 22 points in the victory over Campbellsville at Danville.

Transy held an eight-point lead over Middle Tennessee at halftime, but lost it with three minutes to play as Larry Stewart racked up 28 points for Middle Tennessee.

Villa Madonna was whipped on the boards as it lost to Osnunon at Erie, Pa., in the first game of a three-game road trip.

Villa Madonna plays at St. Bonaventure in the only game scheduled for Kentucky College teams tonight.

Doug Dickey Named To Head Vols

By LOWRY BOWMAN
United Press International

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP) — The University of Tennessee today hired Doug Dickey as head football coach, and gave him a four-year contract period in which to restore the Vols to their former gridiron glory.

Dickey, 31-year old son of a college professor, has been an assistant football coach at the University of Arkansas. His contract, apparently signed during a closed meeting with the Tennessee athletic board, is believed to call for a $16,000 annual salary.

Newsmen asked the new head coach what problems he expected to encounter in making a transition from Tennessee's traditional single-wing offense to the T-formation attack used at most colleges.

"I don't think anybody will have a real problem except the quarterback," Dickey replied. "Whoever wins that position, will have the confidence of the other players."

Dickey played football under Bob Woodruff at the University of Florida in 1961-53 as a quarterback. Woodruff, who lost his Florida job, now is Tennessee Athletic director. Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles, who also was coaching at Florida while Dickey was a player, described him as "one of the outstanding young head coaching prospects in the country."

"He has my top recommendation and my blessing," Broyles said. "I just hope he's doing the right thing for himself and his career right now."

Dickey is a native of Gainesville, Fla., where his late father was a University of Florida professor.

Couch Jim McDonald, who held the top job for only five months, was let go Sunday. He succeeded shifted to the post of assistant athletic director last June when Wyatt's illness and alumni complaints forced him out.

Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Britain's medical experts are taking a close look at boxing's head injuries, and pending a report next year on which sport could rise or fall, British sources report today that both sides are readying their ammunition.

"The grinding of axes can be heard from both sides," asserts the boxing writer of the London Times.

The panic started for those who want to keep boxing in business at a conference of the British Association of Sport and Medicine on the medical aspects of boxing.

One of the first reports was that "punch drunkenness" was more common among professionals than among amateurs, and more frequent among the second-raters or the preliminary boys than among those of championship caliber.

A noted surgeon reported that he believed the risk of head injury might be greater in football soccer from contact of the head with a heavy wet ball.

Theory Borne Out

This would seem to be borne out to some extent by a chart from the Royal Free Hospital which reported treatment of 45 sporting head injuries over the past six years. Of these, 10 were from football and only one from boxing.

The question is, of course, whether boxers go to treatment after they have been knocked out or battered around like a handball. In most cases, you can bet, they shrug off the medicine and merely accept the marbles with the money.

One doctor held that there were other risks in the boxing profession aside from being slapped permanently silly. He found that many lived too high and drank too much and contended that the quota of danger in boxing did not seem sufficient to "do away with it."

Some of the maneuvering would have done credit to a U. S. investigating committee hammering it up before a full set of television cameras.

One physician asserted that he had seen "quite a number of head injuries from boxing during the past 20 or 30 years."

Then, a member of the medical subcommittee of the British Boxing Board of Control blew a slight whistle on him.

Upheld by Board

"We did find one boxer and," he said of the previous physician, "he had given him a license to box. We did not agree and we were upheld by the stewards of the board of control."

Then he added the line which typifies the tragedy of a world in which boxing commissions have no iron-hard agreements internationally.

"This boxer," he explained, "went away somewhere else to box."

As an addendum, he added, the post mortem reports on eight boxers previously killed in the ring "showed no evidence of any previous brain damage."

Once, in other words, was enough.

Jimmy Sidle Back Of The Year In SEC

By DAVID M. MOFFITT
United Press International

ATLANTA, Ga. (UP) — Junior quarterback Jimmy Sidle of Auburn, top ground-gainer in the Southeastern Conference of the past 11 years, today was named Back of the Year in the SEC by United Press International.

Billy Martin, huge senior end at Georgia Tech, was named Lineman of the Year in the SEC Monday.

Sidle was the overwhelming favorite in balloting by newspaper, radio and television sports editors from throughout the region. Billy Lothridge, Georgia Tech's senior triple-threat, was a distant second.

Halfbacks Benny Nelson of Alabama and Ode Burrell of Mississippi State and fullback Larry Dupree of Florida were the only other backs receiving votes.

Although held to only 39 yards after being injured in last Saturday's 10-8 upset over Alabama, Sidle finished the season with 1,712 yards, sixth best mark in SEC history, and led the nation in rushing with 1,006 yards. He was the first SEC player to gain 1,000 yards rushing since 1950.

Dangerous on Option
Sidle, a 195-pounder from Birmingham, Ala., gained 1,140 yards as a sophomore and now has a two-year total of 2,852. He is especially dangerous as a runner on the option play. He had 200 or more yards against Kentucky, Georgia Tech and Florida and was just eight yards shy of that mark in a 13-10 loss to Mississippi State, Auburn's only loss this season.

Martin was the top vote-getter among 12 candidates for the lineman award. The 6-foot-5, 236-pound flankman was outstanding both offensively and defensively for Georgia Tech this season and was named to the UPI All-Conference team for the second year in a row.

Runner-up for the lineman honor was Mississippi State center-guard Pat Watson of Meridian, Miss., and sophomore guard Stan Hindman of Mississippi was third.

Lothridge Is Versatile
Lothridge, runner-up for the Heisman Trophy, was one of the most versatile players in the nation. He passed and ran for 1,240 yards, scored 60 points and passed for 62 more and punted for a 41-yard average. In his illustrious three-year career, he scored 204 points, including a national record 21 field goals, and set a Tech record for touchdown passes with 18.

Nelson has nine touchdowns and 575 yards rushing with one game to go. Dupree is second to Sidle in rushing with 745 yards, 141 more than he won the SEC rushing title with last year.

Other players who received votes for Lineman of the Year were Tennessee guard Steve Delong, Mississippi end Allen Brown, Mississippi center Ken Dill, Auburn guard Bill Van Dyke, Kentucky tackle Herschel

McKendree Falls 83-68 Before A Capacity Crowd

The Murray State Thoroughbreds launched their round ball season last night with an 83-68 victory over McKendree College of Lebanon, Illinois before a good turn out of fans in the MSC sports arena.

Couch Cal Luther's aggregation took a 9-1 opening advantage and drifted to the 15-point triumph as nine players on the 12-man roster found the scoring column. All five starters scored in double numerals.

McKendree, with a veteran lineup that helped the Illinois school capture its conference championship for the sixth consecutive time last year, never came closer than three points at 12-9, after five minutes of play.

figures were Jennings with 13, 11 of them in the first half, Namcu and Pendleton with 12, and Schlosser with 10.

The opener with McKendree was the first of three games this week for Murray with the competition getting progressively tougher.

Thursday night Murray hosts control-minded Oglethorpe University of Atlanta, Georgia. Saturday powerful Bradley University invades the Murray field house.

Last year Murray State was hard-pressed to take a 50-45 win over Oglethorpe and in its game with Bradley at Peoria, lost by a heart-breaking one point decision, 79-78.

GIVE BEAVER HIS DUE

The beaver is often maligned, and it seems only fair to call attention to its value during a dry spell such as New England suffered this past summer. There, according to the National Wildlife Federation, the beaver's water holes were utilized for forest fire fighting. Brooks continued to flow only because of beaver impoundments on them. One man in Hopkinton, N.H., is known to be grateful to beaver for having built a pond on his land. While many shallow wells in the area went dry, his held up beautifully. His well is adjacent to the beaver impoundment.

CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

No. 366 A report published by Maj. T. T. S. Laidley of the U. S. Army Ordnance Department during the war contained what might have been considered an ironic commentary on sentiments in President Lincoln's Gettysburg Address in November 1863. "The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract," Major Laidley revealed that of 27,574 muskets picked up on the Gettysburg battlefield, about 24,000 were still loaded.

Inspections showed many cases of improper loading or jamming of mechanism. Obviously, there were other important reasons for such a high proportion of the combatants' muskets having been ineffective—such as impulsive panic and abandonment of the weapons in flight.

Of 88,289 Union soldiers engaged, 3,155 were killed, 14,529 wounded or captured and 5,365 "missing" after the battle. The figures for the Confederates were about the same. Quote a protagonist in Robert Heinlein's novel, "Glorious Road": "I was backed up by weapons in the hands of men who knew how to use them. Do you know how many men in a platoon actually shoot in combat? Maybe six. More likely three. The rest freeze up."

There was a convenient way of getting away from danger: be one of two or four men to grab a soldier who had any kind of wound to take him to the rear.

Sun Spots Will Affect Human Beings

NEW YORK (AP) — Impressive massive statistics now support the idea that "sun spots" which periodically mess up the behavior of radios can also mess up the behavior of human beings.

The idea is not nearly as far-fetched as it may sound. To realize that all creatures with central nervous systems operate on self-generated electricity.

It flows in direct currents, carrying nerve impulses. These power the built-in communications which permit people and other organisms to control themselves.

Transmitting and receiving radios are similarly powered. Their impulses travel through the earth's magnetic field, and so do those of creatures. They have to—the creatures exist within the field.

Smooth-flowing

Now, the earth's magnetic field is, generally speaking, smooth-flowing. The smoother its flow the better are radio communications. But there are continual variations which coincide with day becoming night and vice versa.

These are relatively minor, however. What really kicks up storms in the earth's magnetic field are the cycling magnetic disturbances on the sun which result in "sun spots." While these magnetic storms rage, radio communications are at their worst.

Dr. Howard Friedman, Robert O. Becker and Charles H. Bachman of the State University of New York and Syracuse N. Y. University have been fascinated for some time by the possibility that magnetic storms can do no less to the interior communications of the human nervous system.

The idea was not a new one. But no one has been able to give it scientifically acceptable substance. They undertook doing that by comparing a statistically measurable human phenomenon with a statistically measurable phenomenon of the earth's magnetic field.

Vary Admissions

Their human phenomenon was the varying daily admission rates for seven central New York state psychiatric hospitals over a four-year period. Their magnetic phenomenon were daily variations in the intensity of the earth's magnetic field over the same four years.

These phenomena were translated into mathematical conceptions which made them comparable on a statistical basis, and the comparison revealed a high order of statistical significance.

That is, the greater the intensity of the earth magnetic field due to "sun spots" and other natural interference coming out of the cosmos, the higher the rate of psychiatric hospital admissions—as mathematically correlated.

64 Pontiac

Here's why you'll like it.

Here's why you'll tell other people you like it.

Some people think it's a bit frivolous to like a car just because it looks so nice. So what you'll have to do is bone up a little on all the other things that make a Pontiac a Pontiac.

Wide-Track, for instance. Wide-Track is what does away with tilting your way around turns. Pontiac's smoother, quieter ride is another thing you might point out.

Be careful, though. One ride in this car and everybody's going to think you're made of money. You can solve that problem by telling what you paid. Or you might just say, "You'd sure think this car cost a lot, wouldn't you?"

Or you could take everybody's mind off it entirely by giving your Pontiac some throttle. A big 389-cubic-inch Trophy V-8 is standard in each and every Pontiac. And you get to choose from 34 engine/transmission teams. (Happy choosing!)

Now then—on to more of the things that make the '64 Pontiac so thoroughly likeable. Frankly, we couldn't think of anything radical to do with this car. Oh, we made the styling even more stylish, as you can plainly see. We lavished even more care on the interiors. We even improved the light bulbs. But as for more vital things, why change? Improve, refine, sharpen—yes. Change—no. And you can tell that to your friends. Really, though, you can buy a Pontiac solely because you like its looks. We don't think you'll find many people who'll ask you for more practical reasons.

What they'll be asking for is a ride—and the name of the man you bought your '64 Pontiac from.

Dear Abby . . .

His Signals Crossed!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a girl who buys her own engagement ring? Her boy friend told her he couldn't afford to buy her a ring because he is paying off his car, so she went out and bought herself one and paid for it. She says lots of girls do it. Her boy friend said if it makes her happy, he doesn't see anything wrong with it. Am I old-fashioned or isn't this fellow a poor excuse for a man?

BYSTANDER
DEAR BYSTANDER: Apparently the girl is calling the signals. She should have bought TWO rings—one for his nose.

DEAR ABBY: A friend I grew up with but haven't seen in years, called me long distance and said she was coming to this city to visit for a few days. I told her I'd be glad to see her, but I didn't have room enough in my apartment to have her stay with us. She said, "Oh, the floor will be good enough for me." I told her I wouldn't think of it, but she argued and argued and I couldn't talk her out of it. Now my husband is having a fit, and says he can't have a woman sleeping on the floor while he is sleeping on a bed. He says he'll go stay with friends and give HER his bed. Abby, I can't let him do that. I am so mad at myself for letting her win the argument. What should I do when she comes?

KICKING MYSELF
DEAR KICKING: Beg, borrow, or rent a mattress or sleeping bag and let her sleep on the floor. She's 99% brass and won't feel a thing.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 years old and I guess I should know when I am sick and when I am not sick. My mother calls me a "little hypochondriac." Whenever I complain about a headache or a pain in the leg or the arm she says it's only growing pains and if I didn't pay so much attention to myself I wouldn't notice them. I want to see a doctor but every time I mention it, my mother says, "Oh, it's nothing, you don't need a doctor." How can I convince my mother that I do?

NO HYPOCHONDRIAC
DEAR NO: If you really think you need to see a doctor, ask your teacher or school nurse to persuade your mother. Perhaps you have complained too much in the past about minor ailments to be taken seriously now. But don't ignore your pains.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3366, Beverly Hills, Calif.
